LATE ITEM

Tur	key

President Gursel has accepted Inonu's resignation, brought on by continued dis-50X1 agreement in his coalition government over a gradual or blanket amnesty for imprisoned Menderes followers. Inonu and his cabinet are to remain until a new government is formed. This will probably be another Inonu government but without Justice Party participation. This party is split and many of its members may now throw their support to Inonu. The military, meanwhile, stand watchfully in the wings. They look askance at any form of amnesty, but have made no move yet.

3.	Hardening of Soviet policy line	a. Orders to reverse the Soviet stand on the war propaganda declaration came suddenly from the Soviet party
		b. An authoritative "observer" article in yesterday's Izvestiya is the most uncompromising public statement on Berlin to come out of Moscow in recent months. Its discussion of a German peace treaty and the consequences thereof imparts a sense of urgency, but without setting a deadline.  c. The Soviet air safety controller yesterday protested to his US and British counterparts against certain local and round-robin flights which he described as inconsistent with the purpose for which the corridors were created.  d. The sudden proliferation East German police at the Berlin sector border yesterday has just as suddenly subsided; it may have been a practice alert. In any case we do not credit reports that the East Germans have brought in additional police units. Tensions remain high, however, in the aftermath of last week end's uproar.
